Day 1

Tuesday 6th May

The group arrived late afternoon, collected from the airport by Michelle's taxis. After checking into the hotel, the group met for a drink on the terrace. Although it was breezy, it was pleasant and sunny. We saw Oystercatcher and Dunlin on the beach, also observing Rock pipit and White Wagtail on the Douglas quay.

One of the features in the hotel is a cinema and the group uses this facility to log the sightings for the day. While in the cinema we discussed the activities that were scheduled for the week and the limitations a windy forecast might impose, then we had our evening meal at the hotel.

Day 2

Wednesday 7th May

An early start for some of the group with a moth trap before breakfast, the highlights being Least Black Arches, Broad Barred White and Dark Swordgrass. After Breakfast we collected our sandwiches from PJ's Cafe in town and we headed out to Kiln Farm. From this high vantage point on the east cliffs we could see the French coast and the other Channel Islands. Amongst the grazing cows that produce the milk and butter that we enjoyed at the hotel, were six Yellow Wagtail. Although they were initially partially concealed by the long grass they did wander into the path giving the group excellent views.

There were a small number of Barn Swallows visibly migrating through while we were walking north along the cliff path, then suddenly a large group of c.260 individuals came over, feeding and chattering as they passed by.

There had been an emergence of Lackey caterpillars in the bushes along the coast, seen on their web nurseries and ready to disperse amongst the vegetation. The group was also treated to Cocksfoot moth, an intricately marked 3mm micro moth, in abundance feeding on the Ox-eye Daisies. Continuing along the coast path we came to Telegraph House, now used as the Alderney Bird Observatory base, where we stopped for lunch.

We descended from Essex Castle overlooking Longis Bay at the top of the hill towards the Nunnery, entering into the German Tunnel when we got to the bottom of the hill. We discussed the history and purpose of the tunnel, observing Bloxworth Snout and Herald moths as we made our way inside.

The group had time to explore the Roman Fort and the Nunnery and view the timeline of events displayed on the information boards in the German bunkers within. From here we made our way to the Naturetrek sponsored bird hide on Longis Common, Reed Warblers were reeling near the hide and the Coot family was actively feeding.

Following the footpath we made our way to the Odeon, a German range finding station. On our way we enjoyed Green-winged Orchids, still holding on at the end of their flowering season. Our walk finished in the disused quarry under the Odeon. Here there were Changing Forget-me-not, Hairy Bird's-foot Trefoil and Orange Bird's-foot Trefoil.

Our day did not end there however; there was a break in the wind that had been forecast and we were able to get our boat trip in the early evening. Setting off from the harbour, we went south to Les Etacs visiting the Gannet colony and then coming back to Burhou to see the Puffins. A spectacular finish to an action-packed day, topped off with a relaxing meal in the Quarterdeck, overlooking the inner harbour.

Day 3

Thursday 8th May

The second moth trap of the trip to start the day, Esperia sulphurella being the highlight of the catch. Usually a day flier, it had come to rest on the external collar of the trap and remained steady for viewing. Following breakfast at the hotel we set off to town to collect sandwiches from PJ's Cafe, following an alternative route via the Alderney peace garden. Firecrest was heard calling in the spruce trees but remained elusive to sight.

Following the track we joined the coast path and made our way to Val Du Saou where there was a fine display of Bluebells. From here we continued south following the Standing Stone walk along the cliff path. In testing conditions there were brief views of Dartford Warbler. We found a sheltered spot to stop for lunch where there was a carpet of flowers, including Common Rampion, Foxglove, Sheep's-bit and Thrift. While we were stationary a pheromone lure was opened to attract Emperor Moth and a few males came to investigate.

We stopped at the gates to the WW2 concentration camp, SS Lager Sylt, to pay our respects. After we moved on from the gates there was discussion detailing the German occupation of Alderney during the war.

Our walk continued past the Alderney pig farm where Oxford sandy and black pigs are reared. A family group of piglets were sunning next to the fence for an up close encounter for the group. Joining the Zig-zag path there were views over Fort Clonque and out to Burhou; the Gorse is exceptional at this time of year and the scent filled the air. The walk continued from Fort Clonque to Fort Torgis. Ragged Robin and Water Figwort were the botany highlights on this stretch of the walk.

After the day's log was completed we went to Saye Beach Campsite for our evening meal. It was a lovely sunny evening and Bar-tailed Godwit and Whimbrel were seen in Saye Bay. This was all a prelude to another Alderney highlight, as the light fell away the search for the blonde hedgehogs commenced! The group was successful in their mission with both brown and blonde hedgehogs found.

Day 4

Friday 9th May

After breakfast, Day 4 started outside the hotel with a brief history of the Douglas Quay and observing the plants growing there. After a short walk to Fort Doyle and on to Platte Saline there were seven Ringed Plover on the beach. The botany included a few sand and shingle specialists such as Sea Holly, Sea Kale, Sea Spurge and Yellow-horned Poppy. As we arrived at Fort Torgis Small Flowered Catchfly and Hare-tailed Grass were on the bank by the sea. Following exploration of Fort Torgis the group returned to the Hotel for lunch.

An afternoon walk to the north-east coast passed through Longis Nature Reserve. Male Stonechat were singing and showing well as we crossed the grassy scrub and as we got to the reedbed there were a few hirundines passing overhead giving a chance to compare House Martin, Sand Martin and Swallow. As we were viewing the hirundines there was a strong repetitive call, which would normally be accompanied by a flight display but as it was quite breezy the call was coming from a fixed point. We were able to locate the call to a clump of brambles and perched on a prominent hoop of dead bramble there was a male Fan-tailed Warbler (Zitting Cisticola). The group had great views.

The walk continued on to the coast towards Houmet Herbe, where we were lucky to find some Alderney Sea Lavender in flower alongside Rock Sea Lavender. Along this stretch of coast there were plenty of Butterflies, Common Blue and Wall Brown being the most abundant and a few Painted Ladies too visiting the Thrift flowers.

The day's log was followed by an evening meal at the hotel.

Day 5

Saturday 10th May

A later start to the day to allow time for departure preparations. When everyone was checked out and baggage stowed we made our way into town to visit the museum. There is a lot of Alderney history on display in the museum, bringing everything seen during the week together. We then went into the town, via St Anne's Church and stopped at Jack's for Lunch.

It was soon time to meet Michelle's Taxis at the hotel and set off to the airport; what an action packed few days!
